

Ancient

Tips

to get the most out of your

Guided Breathing Visualization

What is a guided breathing visualization?

I am teaching you a practice. This is a discipline. Like martial arts, or yoga, or learning an instrument. These visualizations are designed to open up specific energetic sensors that exist in your body. Some of those sensors you are familiar with, like sight, taste, touch, hearing, and smell, while there are many others you are not aware of. The best thing about the guided breathing visualizations is that they can open up those sensors and develop them so that you can experience greater relaxation, focus, and increasing energy all day long.

When should I do one?

The more you practice, the more benefits you get. The better life gets. And with any practice, it helps to create a routine around it. I recommend doing my Guided Breathing Visualization practice in the morning before the rest of the world starts pulling you in a million different directions. Increase to twice daily for even better results. Many of my clients do them before bedtime for great restful sleep, and before important meetings during the day or evening.

Where should I do one?

You can do these anywhere. In bed laying down, sitting in a chair, at work, in your car (pulled over of course!), or even waiting to see the doctor. The key is to do them. Most of us have a million excuses for why we can't do our Source Energy practices, but really they are designed to do anytime and anywhere. Put your headphones in and listen on an airplane. Listen before your workout session. They are so convenient and will fuel you wherever you are and in whatever you want to do.

How should I do one?

Relax, close your eyes, follow along with the imagery. It is expected that your mind will wander and so just bring it back to the imagery when you notice that you've drifted. Yawning or feeling drowsy is normal. You might even fall asleep. Your body will still be pulling in Source Energy even when you are not awake. Afterwards, write a goal for something you will take action on next and allow the Source Energy vibrations to flow towards that goal.

What should I hope to achieve?

At a minimum, the results usually start with an experience of calm relaxation that can help you be more productive and effective. You can expect to feel more calm, clear-minded, and focused afterwards. You will keep improving every time you do these visualizations. It only takes a few minutes, and over time, the results build and build and build in your life.

Energy for Success

The Great 8

*The 8 specific areas people access to blast into success.
Take a stand. Where your focus goes, the Energy flows.*

1. Relationships

Relationships improve daily with self and other people at work, at home. They improve wherever you are spending your time. Relationships become remarkably rewarding for you and other people. Have more fun and enjoyment.

2. Expanding Finances

Consciously focus Source Energy towards every aspect of financial security and wealth. Use Source Energy in structuring your goals so that you become sharper every day and more effective at having success in your goal of financial abundance.

3. Accessing Equanimity & Looking Forward To (LFT)

Equanimity is being calm/confident that you will eventually win, while collecting the data and choosing new successful approaches that are necessary in the present time. The experience of LFT arises throughout your AM and PM, in your mind and body, and in whatever you are doing mentally, physically, or interpersonally. LFT is the state of things becoming easier, clearer, enjoyable, and interesting. Your satisfaction at being more effective and efficient is palpable for you and others.

4. Creativity

Find unique winning solutions in every one of your endeavors. Be creative to address the surprises. Be fortified to be in concert and merge with nature, your environment and the universe.

5. Health, Vitality, Strength

Add one practice that will improve your ability to access the Source Energy to WIN! Pull from the rainbow of vibrations to access at any time. Amp yourself with practices to increase your ability to surf the waves and to experience the vibrations of success. Get stronger and have your body's metabolism support you. You can get younger and stronger.

6. Intelligence

Use Source Energy to have access to excelling in your intelligence, in your perceptivity and in improving your talents daily. You get smarter and more creative in noticing the exciting opportunities. You get to newly and joyfully discover the answers.

7. Noticing Serendipity on Command

Allow things to come to you in remarkable ways. Improve your Energy practices daily, watch what fuels your daily goals, and have them come to fruition in many surprising and unexpectedly positive ways.

8. Getting in the "Zone"

Increase your efficiency and effectiveness daily in reaching your goals. Make one of your daily goals to experience yourself being in the Source Energy zone. Increase the flow of Energy in whatever you are doing. Mobilize the sensors in your body to be in a creative flow state in handling your ideas. Handle the now with excitement.

Energy for Success

The Great 8

*The 8 specific areas people access to blast into success.
Take a stand. Where your focus goes, the Energy flows.*

